Dupatta Cotton Leheriya/Wavy/Tie & Dye

*Dupatta Cotton Leheriya/Wavy/Tie & Dye.
Truly an art piece!!*

CATALOGUE

Dupatta Rayon Lehriya

Leheria(or leheriya) is a traditional style of tie dye practiced in Rajasthan, India that results in brightly colored cloth with distinctive patterns. The technique gets its name from the Rajasthani word for wave because the dyeing technique is often used to produce complex wave patterns. No small wonder that the blues in leheriya attract the eyes instinctively

CATALOGUE

Dupatta Bandhej Cotton

Indian Traditional Rajasthani Boho Bohemian Bandhani Dupatta made of tie and dye work. The Stole has white dots all over. The stole is basically handmade from coloring to stitching, every thing is done. This 'tie-and-dye' technique involves tying pre-chosen sections of fabric tightly by winding a thread before dipping into the dyes. These threads are later removed to reveal non-dyed circular resist patterns which render the fabric a unique design

CATALOGUE

Dupatta Pure Georgette

This Dupatta has been hand tie-dyed using vegetable dyes on Georgette. It's lightweight & worth including in your ethnic wear collection.

CATALOGUE

Bandhej A Line Skirts

Bandhani is a tie-dyeing technique practiced mainly in western India. Intricate patterns are created by wrapping the fabric with string before dyeing it. When the fabric is untied, natural patterns appear in the places where the string prevented the dye from taking hold. These pieces drape beautifully and expand your travel wardrobe by working as separates or as a set.
